

SOUTH DEVON YOUNG ARTS IN PLYMOUTH

This year City College Plymouth took Art & Enterprise out into the community to help bring pleasure to others. Linking with a local nursing home and Stoke Damerel Church, the severely autistic students worked on making sensory works of art to create pleasant areas to sit in, in gardens and courtyards. Works include fabric painting on soft furnishings for the chairs and for mobiles to hang in the trees. They also made 'fiddle muffs' for those living with Dementia. This involved the students in making art work which could be interacted with, viewed, touched and heard. The students also benefited from the experience of creating and working with others.
